

Cruise Line Shareholders Receive Special Amenities

Cruise travelers who own at least 100 shares of stock in Carnival Corporation or Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd. at the time of booking can enjoy special onboard credits, courtesy of the world's two largest cruise lines.

Carnival Corporation, which owns Carnival Cruise Lines, Costa Cruises, Cunard Line, Princess Cruises, Holland America and Seabourn, provides shareholders with an onboard credit per stateroom based on the length of the cruise:

$250 for cruises lasting 14 days or longer

$100 credit for sailings of 7-13 days

$50 credit for cruises lasting six days or less. These benefits are applicable on sailings booked by February 28, 2007 and completed by July 31, 2007 (though they tend to be renewed every year).

Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd. offers a similar program to its shareholders.

In addition to Royal Caribbean International cruises, shareholders also receive benefits on Celebrity Cruises (excluding sailings on the Celebrity Xpedition and any sailings offered under the Celebrity Xpeditions program.) as follows:

$250 onboard credit per stateroom on cruises of 14 or more nights

$200 credit for sailings between 9-13 nights

$100 credit for cruises of 6-8 nights

$50 credit for sailings of five nights or less. These benefits can be applied toward reservations booked no later than May 1, 2007.

To receive these benefits, Carnival and Royal Caribbean shareholders must provide a photocopy of their shareholder proxy cards or a current brokerage statement.
